

Salem Youth Music Festival Lesson Music Project fundraiser

Anna Chau, Glory Lyatuu & Megha Joshi

Glory Lyatuu, Teddy Zhang, Anna Chau, Israel Perez, Megha Joshi, Sarina Grant, Ned Harlan & Juliana McLaughlin

South Salem students Glory Lyatuu, Megha Joshi, and Anna Chau organized a community concert that was held on June 16 to raise money for The Music Lessons Project, a recently formed nonprofit that funds personalized music instruction for Salem Keizer Schools' students with limited resources. The Salem Youth Music Festival featured talented students from South Salem, Sprague, and West Salem High Schools and raised over $800 for the project. The student organizers hope to make this concert an annual tradition in order to continue to support private music lessons for students who cannot afford them as well as the opportunity for talented high school musicians to play for the Salem-Keizer community.