SIA Theory of Action

If we better engage community members, community partners, families, and students with ongoing two-way communication and authentic relationships, we will gain input and insight into our students' diverse cultures, and we will become more culturally competent; then we will create more student-centered systems and students will experience a higher sense of belonging.

SIA Data Outcomes

- Improved sense of belonging by disaggregated data for specific student groups
- Improved parent perception of schools as measured by Panorama survey
